Promised to rap about K & R's Whitehouse visit in May; an experience they will never forget. They flew in on Monday for an interview which had been set up for them and which took place before their luggage arrived from the airport. There was quite a scrounging around for suitable clothes to wear for the interview. Richard ended up wearing Paul Bloch's shoes (several sizes too big for him) and Paul, dressed in a suit, sat without shoes. (Paul is their promotion man.) They held a rehearsal that afternoon for a soundcheck. The Whitehouse Staff came in to watch so K & R played nearly a full concert for them. Dinner that night was enjoyed at the Jockey Club and the evening was spent dancing at the Whitehouse. The night of the Whitehouse concert each of the men, including all Roadies, was attired in a tux. Protocol had K & R one room behind the President as he proceeded from room to room to the East room where guests are privileged to form a line and meet the President. That done, the entertainers are introduced. Maria was in line to meet the president and once thru the line, she found she wasn't allowed to return to K & R. GIANT PANIC! She hadn't finished K's hair! She was finally rescued by a Whitehouse lady in charge of entertainment who ushered her back to a much relieved Karen. The Whitehouse concert was enhanced by the accompaniment of the U.S. Marine Force orchestra. Of course, K & R were well received and the President and Whitehouse guest, West German Chancellor, Willy Brandt were very pleased with the concert. The following day, Pear drove R & K and Maria to his parents home in Baltimore. He will never live down the fact that somehow he got turned around and ended up in Virginia instead of Maryland! Thursday they returned to Washington D.C. where they boarded a plane for a seven hour flight to Seattle, Wash. with a short stop over in Denver. During the stop, one of the passengers left the plane to go and buy 10 of the NOW & THEN albums which - you guessed it - K & R autographed for him. In

Seattle, a Gypsy Convention was in progress at the Airport Hilton Hotel where K & R stayed and of course, they were mobbed. K belted one fellow for pinching her posterior. They again encountered a room mix-up but finally got settled in and headed for Tacoma where they put on 2 shows with a troublesome sound system and minus one soundman, Roger, who had contacted the mumps and was forced to return to L.A. Will pick them up next month in Corvallis, Oregon. Ev
